

Table of Contents

Foreword: The Tale of Two Business Owners

Introduction

Stage One: Understand the Financial Part of Your Small Business

1. Do You Have a Hobby or a Business?
2. What Is Your Net Profit—Really?
3. Cash Accounting Gives You a False Sense of Security
4. Profits Are Not Cash: You Can Be Profitable and Go Out of Business
5. What Is Cash?
6. What Is a Balance Sheet?
7. What Is a Profit and Loss Statement?
8. What Is Your Overhead Cost per Hour?

Stage Two: Implement Your Business Financial Monthly Review

9. What Do I Really Need to Do Each Month?
10. Financial Fruit Salad Is a Recipe for Disaster
11. Inventory Is a Bet
12. Growth Masks Unprofitability

Stage Three: Take Action Based on Your Financial Review

13. I Understand My Financial Statements—Now What Should I Do?
14. You Can Delegate, but You Cannot Abdicate

15. Watch Your Cash

16. Easy Planning and Budgeting

17. Conclusions...or Beginnings

Acknowledgments

About the Author

Figures

Figure 1: Cash Flow Diagram

Figure 2: Balance Sheet Format

Figure 3: Profit and Loss Statement Format

Figure 4: Overhead Cost per Hour Format

Figure 5: Weekly Cash Flow Report

Figure 6: Monthly Financial Data Chart

Figure 7: Monthly Financial Data Graph

Figure 8: Trailing Financial Data Graph

Figure 9: Monthly and Trailing Liquidity Ratios Data

Figure 10: Monthly and Trailing Debt Ratios Data

Figure 11: Monthly and Trailing Productivity Ratios Data

Figure 12: Monthly and Trailing Usage Ratios Data

Figure 13: Monthly Liquidity Ratios

Figure 14: Trailing Liquidity Ratios

Figure 15: Monthly Debt Ratios

Figure 16: Trailing Debt Ratios

Figure 17: Monthly Percentage Compensation Ratios

Figure 18: Trailing Percentage Compensation Ratios

Figure 19: Monthly Receivable and Inventory Days Ratios